

SRA Update

Issue 110 - December 2022

- General updates [#tab_34511]
- Compliance updates [#tab_34512]

Welcome to the latest issue of SRA Update. We share details of our thematic review into immigration services, which found that overall there's a good level of provision. However, there are still some areas of concern, so we have produced guidance alongside that review, along with general guidance on the supervision of staff – an issue touched on in the review – for all firms now that flexible working is so widespread. Our new guidance on the Government's financial sanctions regime should be a must-read for all of you, as is our warning notice on abusive litigation aimed at stifling proper scrutiny (Strategic Litigation against Public Participation - SLAPPs). There is also still time to have your say on how a scheme for negligence claims made more than six years after a firm closes might be run. Finally, best wishes to you for a merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Chief Executive

Review looks at immigration services

We have published new guidance on providing immigration services which should help those undertaking such work, along with general guidance on supervision. The guidance follows our thematic review into the sector, which looked at the continuing competence of those providing the services.

We have been awarded a grant from the latest round of Regulators Pioneer Fund (RPF) to explore ways to increase the use of technology-enabled dispute resolution to help individuals and businesses resolve legal issues, without the need to go to court.

Guidance issued on abusive litigation

With the issue of the misuse of abusive litigation aimed at silencing legitimate critics, known as strategic lawsuits against public participation (SLAPPs) continuing to be of concern we have issued guidance to help those potentially on the receiving end of such action. Alongside this we have issued a warning notice to law firms, making it clear that such behaviour is not acceptable, and advising you what to do if you feel other firms are engaging in such activity.

From next year, we are planning to reintroduce a requirement for solicitors without a current practising certificate to apply to remain on the roll. Ahead of this it is important that all solicitors without a practising certificate check that their contact details within mySRA are up to date.

Welcome to the Compliance News section of the latest issue of SRA Update. We have produced guidance on the Government's financial sanctions regime, which should be a must-read for all of you. The sanctions affect every firm, not just those captured by the anti-money laundering regulations. We have also issued a warning notice on abusive litigation aimed at stifling proper scrutiny (Strategic Litigation against Public Participation - SLAPPs). We are currently investigating 29 firms that might have been involved in such action. Please do also take time to read our thematic review into immigration services, and the associated guidance, and general guidance on the supervision of staff. And for those of you that missed our Compliance Officers Conference last month, find out how to catch up on all the highly informative sessions. All that remains to be said is to wish you and yours a merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

The focus on how UK businesses interact with those connected to questionable countries or organisations, and the Government's sanctions regime, has increased since the Russian invasion of Ukraine. There have been a number of changes to the regime, so we have published guidance to help you understand your obligations.
